VOLUME LIV

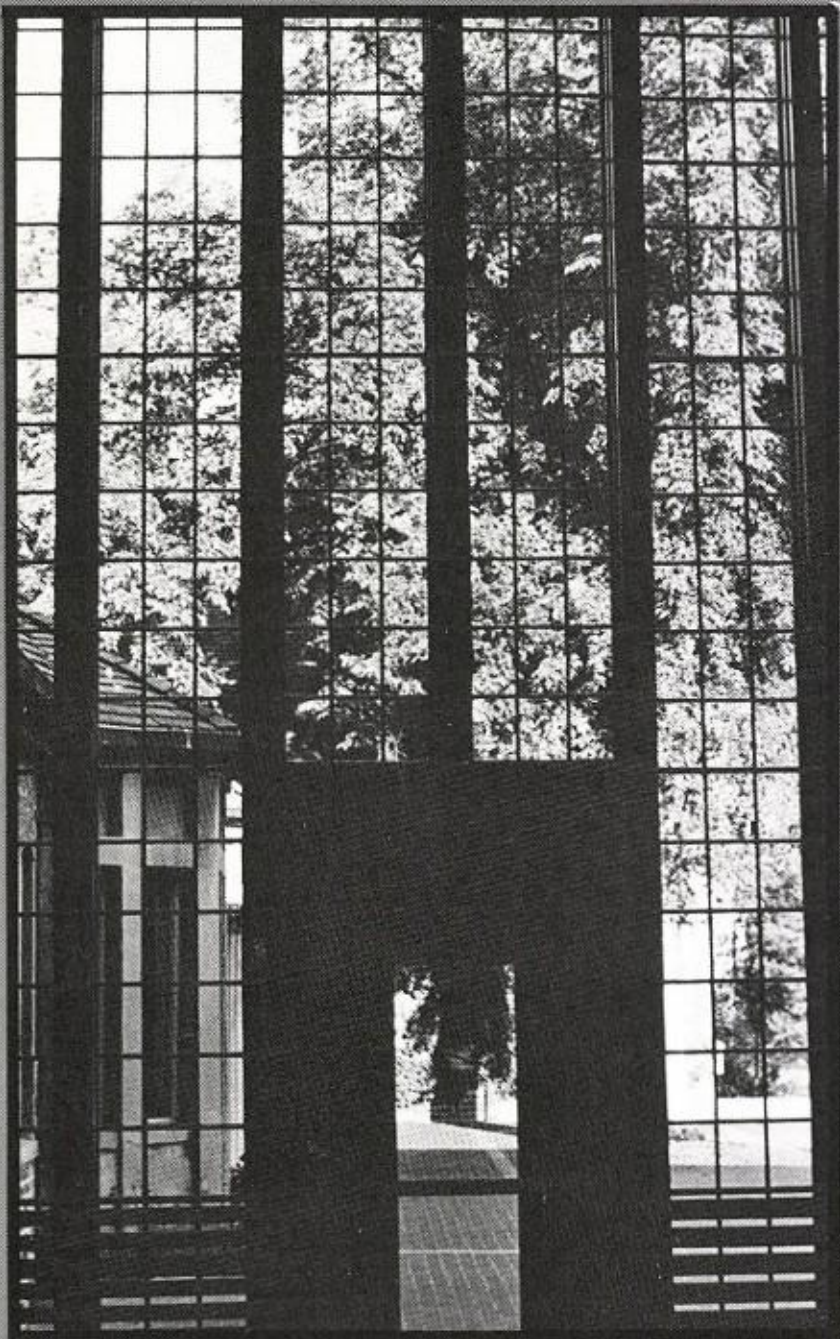

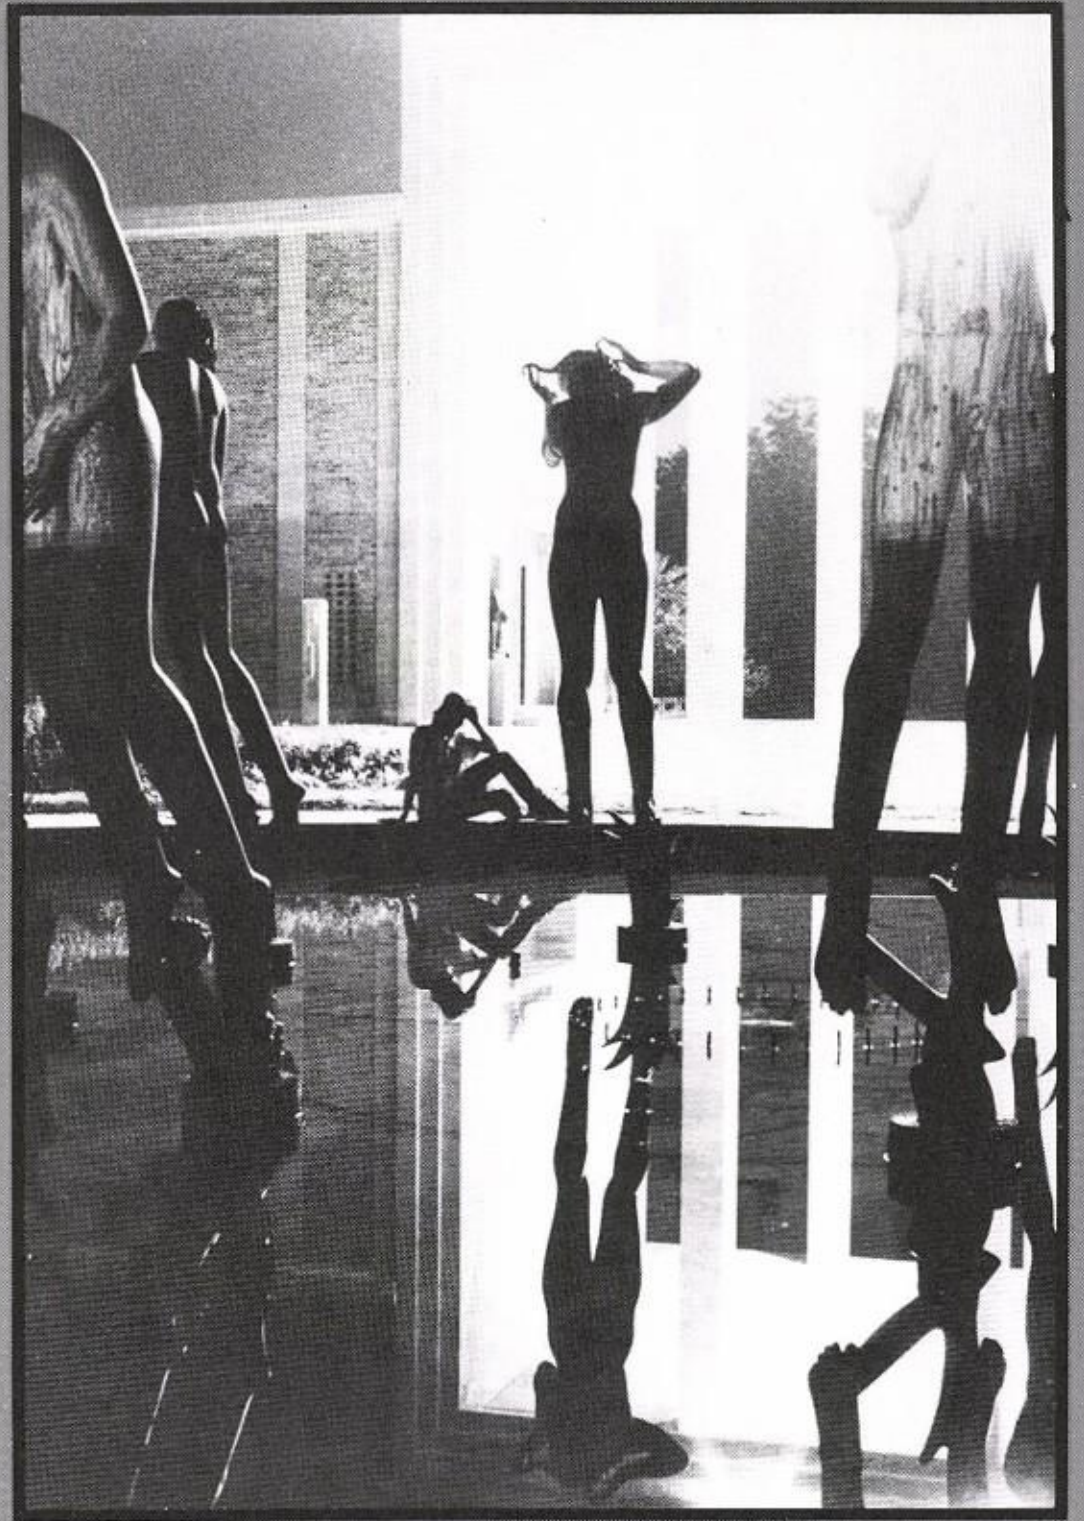

Cranbrook School
Bloomfield Hills, Michigan

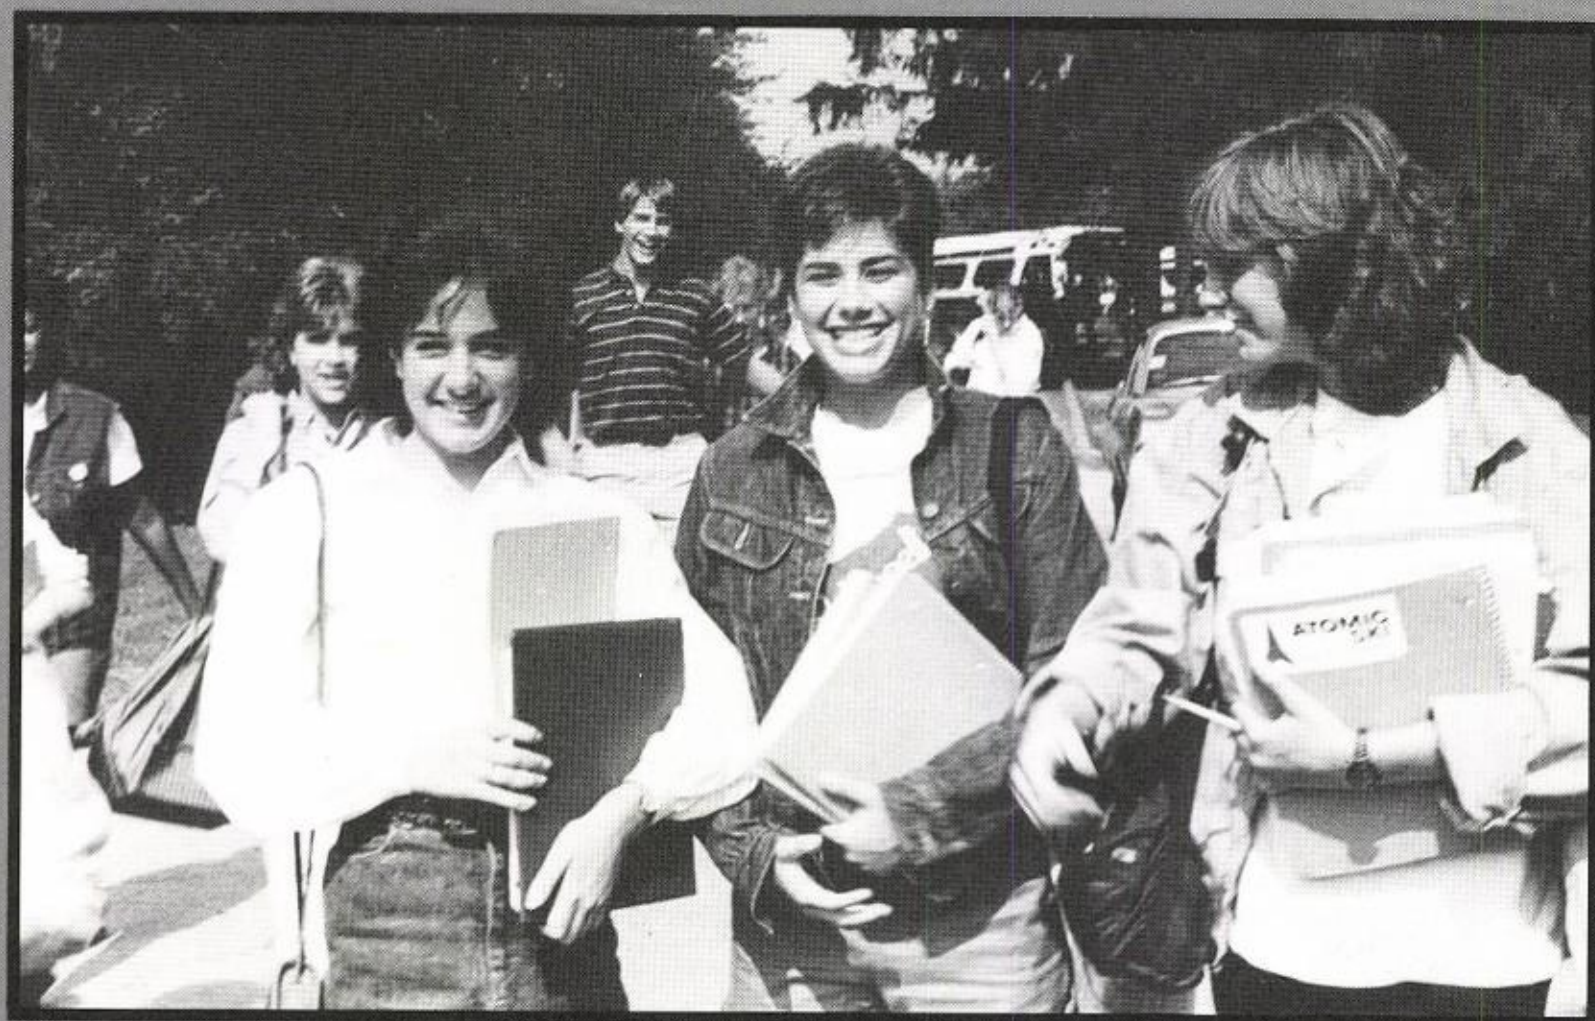

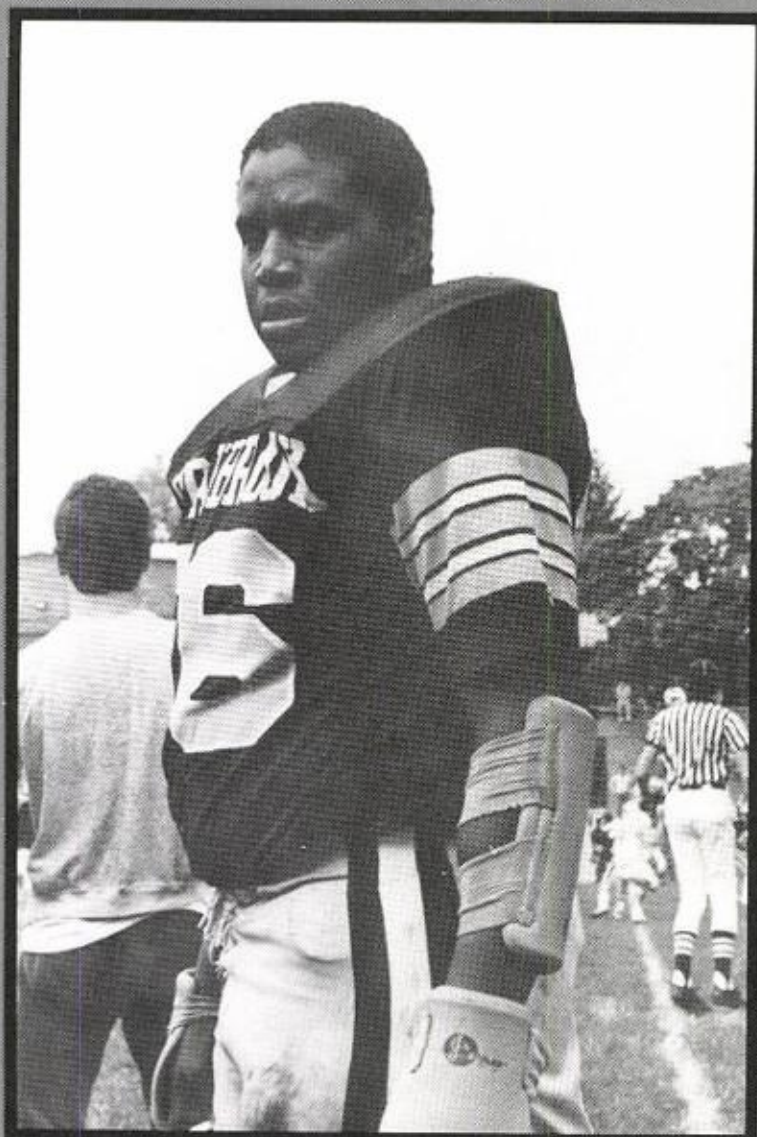

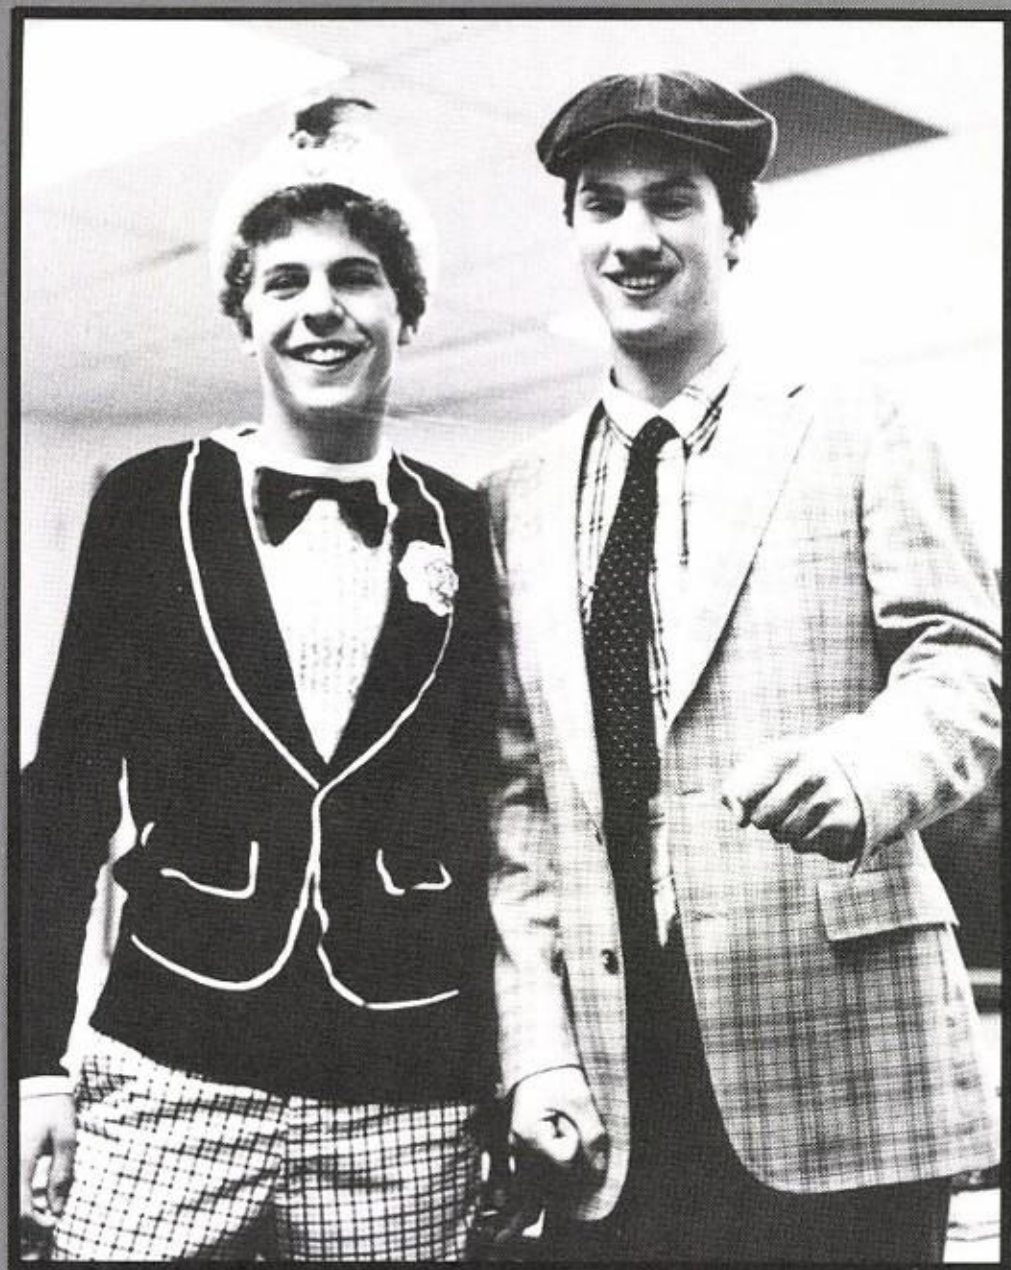

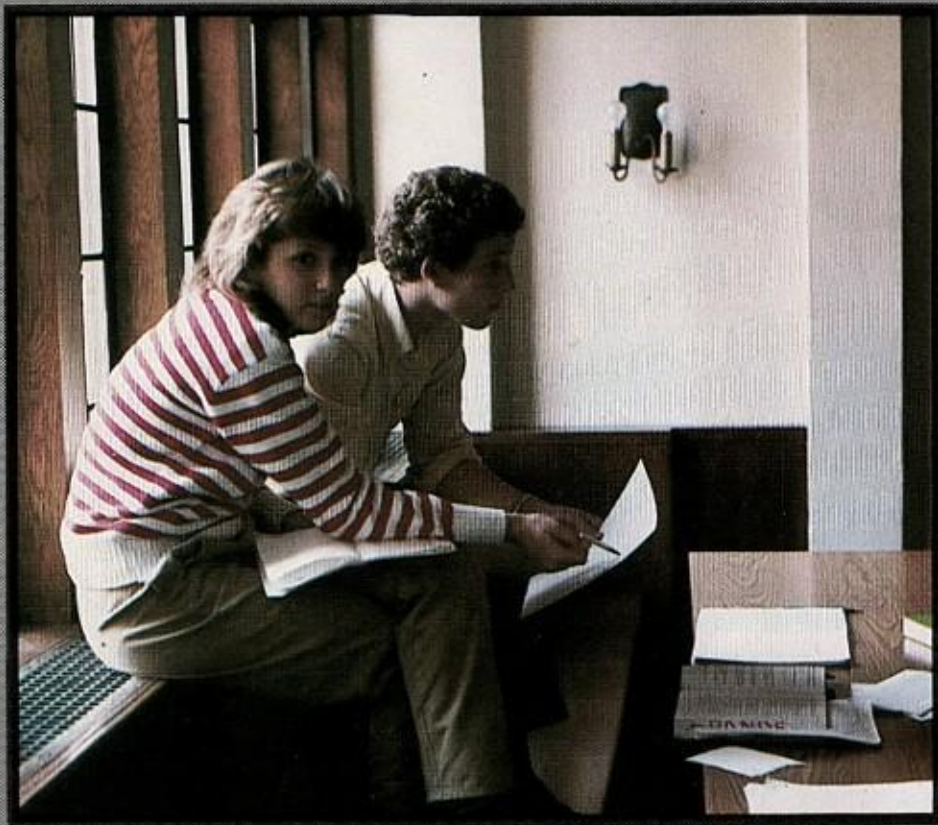

The only living life is in the past and future- the present is an interlude- a strange interlude in which we call on past and future to bear witness that we are living.
 -Eugene O'Neill

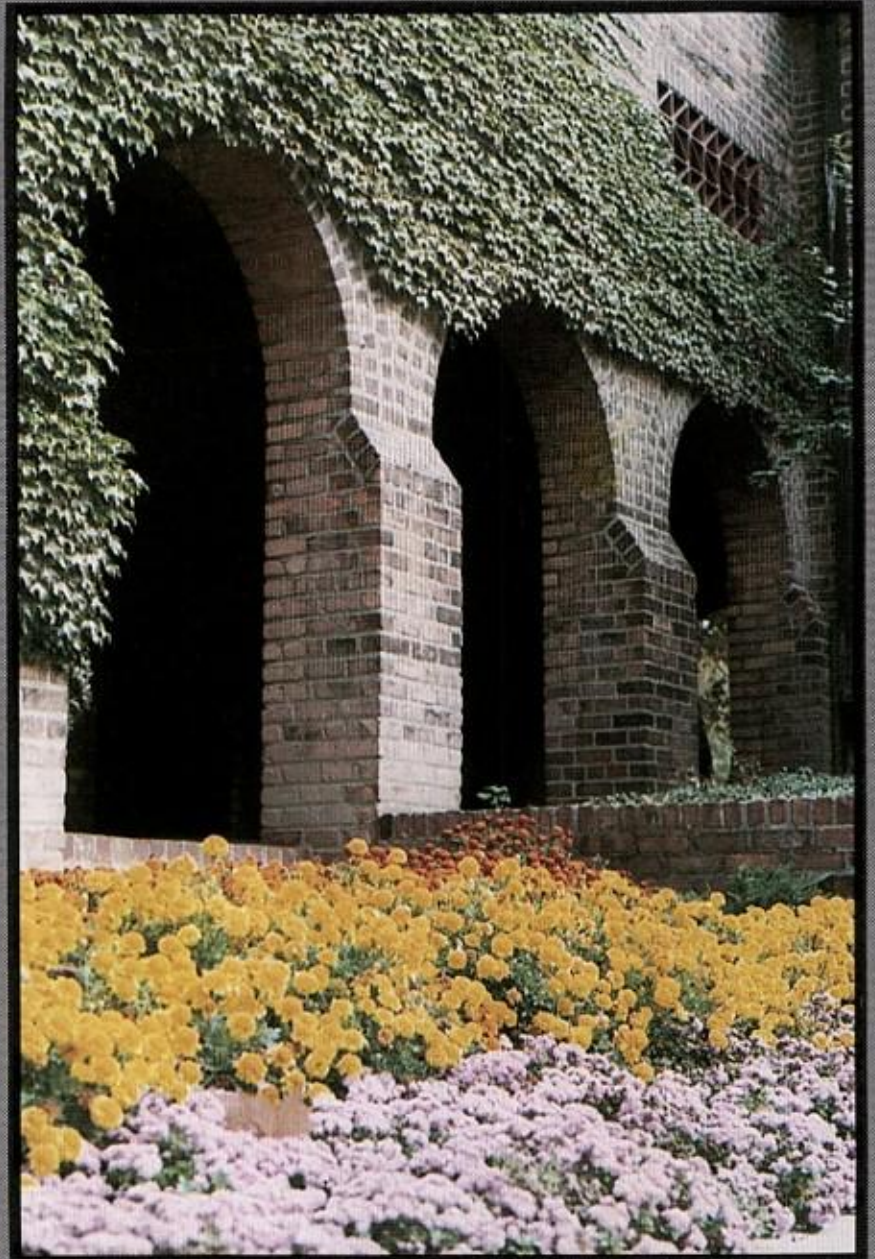

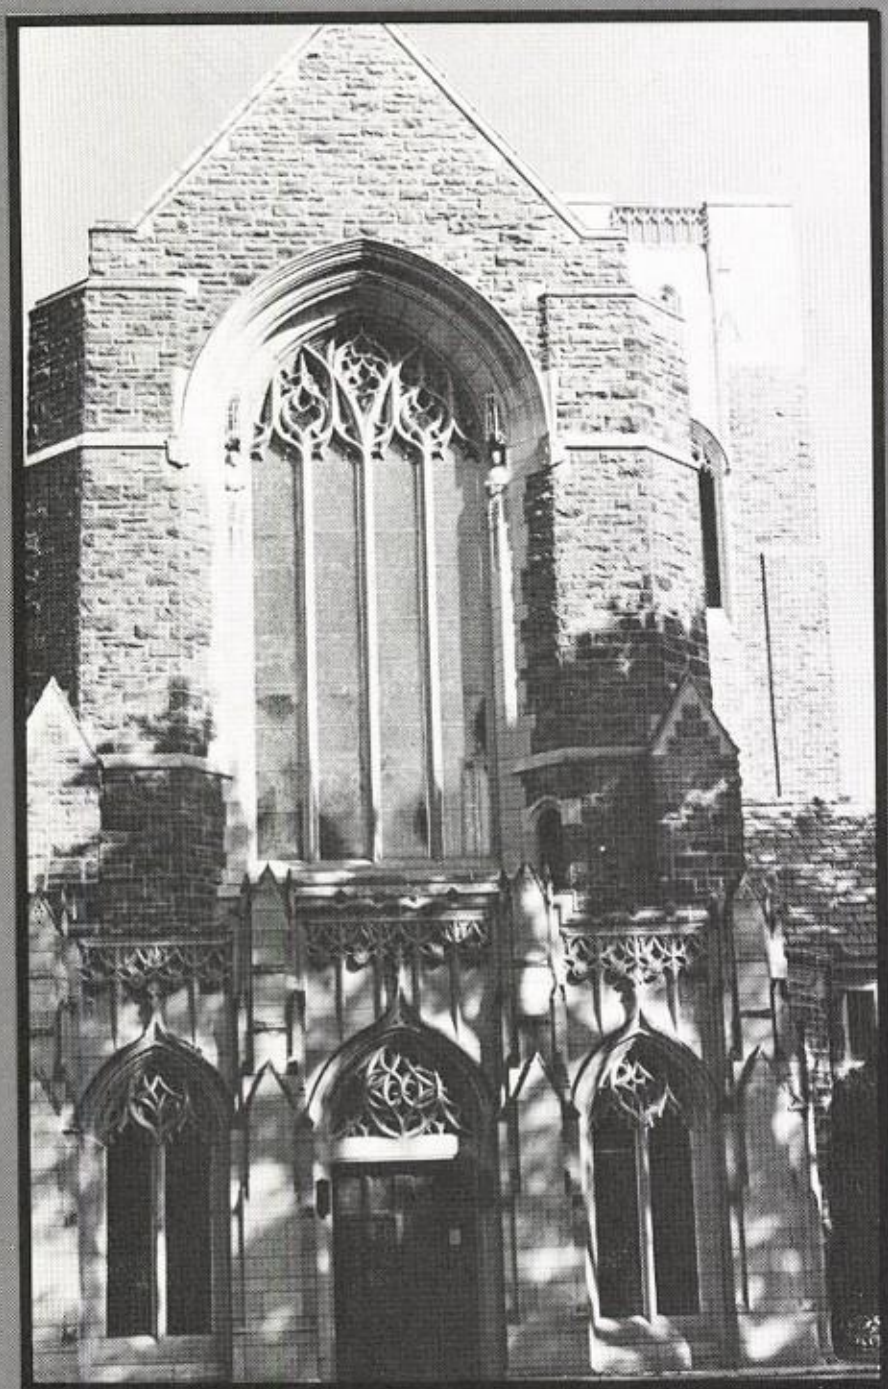

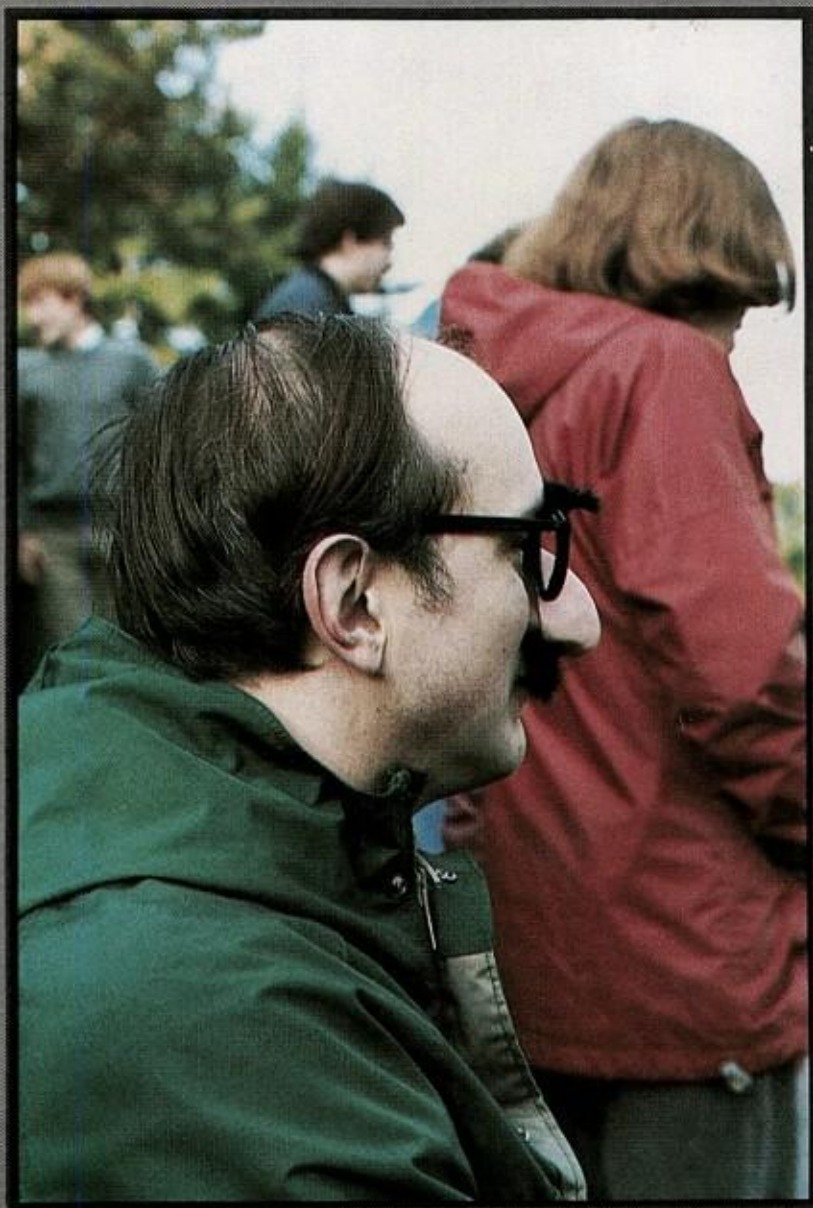

Friendship that flows from the heart cannot be frozen by adversity as the water that flows from the springs cannot congeal winter.

SENIORS

JEFFREY MICHAEL WEISS

All you need in this life is ignorance and confidence, and then success is sure.
- S.L Clemens (Mark Twain)

If you wish to reach the highest, begin at the lowest. - Syrus-Masims

Young men think old men are fools; but old men know young men are fools. -
George Chapman

The more we study, we the more discover our ignorance. - Shelley

Cranbrook Golf: "Well men ... reload" ... Yeah he's a player, so shut your mug! ... You're a hurtin puppy! ... Hey Jimmy, you going out? ... Dude man ... What's happening?

Mom and Dad: It was a long four years, but it was well worth it. I cannot express the love I have for you. Thanks for everything!

I never think of the future. It comes soon enough. - Albert Einstein

Later On Cranbrook!!!

STEPHEN E. POOL

Golf Team — Lorts, Snake, Bradley and Jeffrey F. — it was great.
Whether we won or lost we had a good time. (yeah, yer mug)

Thank you Mr. Hoffman and Mr. Halajian, you have both taught me a great deal.

Mom, Dad, Marilyn and Jon — thanks for your support. I hope I have made you proud.

To the rest of my friends — what can I say? Thanks for being there. I love you all.

The thing that counts is not what we know, but the ability to use what we know. - Leo L. Spears

Within me lies the power to seize the hour and live my dreams.

May the road rise to meet you.
May the wind be always at your back.
May the sun shine warm upon your face.
May the rain fall soft upon your field.
And until we meet again
May God hold you in the palm of his hand.
-Irish Blessing

ROBERT B. LORTS

'Tis virtue, and not birth, that makes us noble; great actions speak great minds. and such should govern. - John Fletcher

To know That which before us lies in daily life, Is the prime wisdom; what is more is fume. - Milton

Education is that which remains when one has forgotten everything he learned in school. - Einstein

Thanks Mom and Dad for your support and this great opportunity.

Today you can make your life significant - and worthwhile. The present is yours to do with as you will. - Grenville Keieser

Cranbrook Golf is #1

Mr. Hoffman and Dr. Vandam - You both were excellent coaches and I will always have great memories of the past three seasons. The mugs - Stevie, Robert, and Jeffrey - Thanks for everything both on and off of the course. Forgettables: Wabeek, Hardees, Goodrich C.C., G.P., and (X)

Every shot in a golf match makes someone happy!

Potential can be one of the worst things to have. - Charlie Brown

Who Dominates! Paul and Brian - Thank you for your friendship and of course also for showing me the 2nd greatest experience obtainable at the CEC. Hey, that's great, thanks for sharing that with me ... It's fun to have fun ... That's incredibly weak (H.B.) ... You're so wrong ... I wanna party with you!!

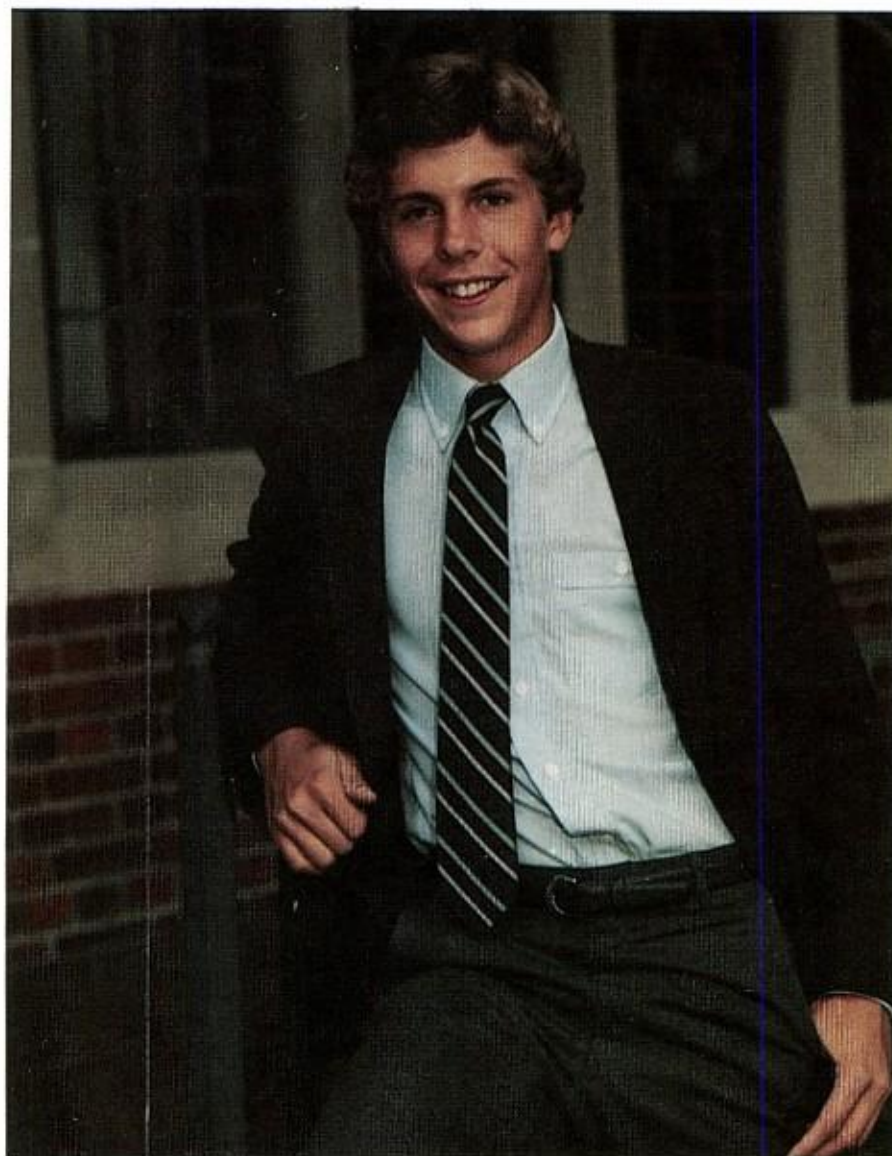

Gotta hide your inhibitions Gotta let that fool loose deep inside your soul Want to see an exhibition Better do it now before you get too old. - Michael Jackson

Mr. Jelliffe - I have great respect for your teaching and would like to thank you on a more personal level for your guidance and friendship.

He was like the man who comes to the door of his house, feels the weight of the day lift from his shoulders, and thinks, 'Thank God I'm home!' - Margaret Craven

Mom and Dad - I can't express my gratitude for your support and direction these past three years. Cranbrook was an outstanding choice. I love you both.

BRADFORD E. MONKS

PAUL THOMAS KIHN

And for a dime I can talk to God, dial a prayer, Are you there, do you care, are you there. - Jonis Ian

Men die
Mountains crumble
Long forgotten
Are the times
Which when occurred
Meant all the earth.

Now I'm standing on the corner
All the world's gone home.
Nobody's changed, nobody's been saved,
And I'm feeling cold and alone.
I guess I'm lucky,
I bless my life,
But sometimes I wish for more than I've got. - Moving Pictures

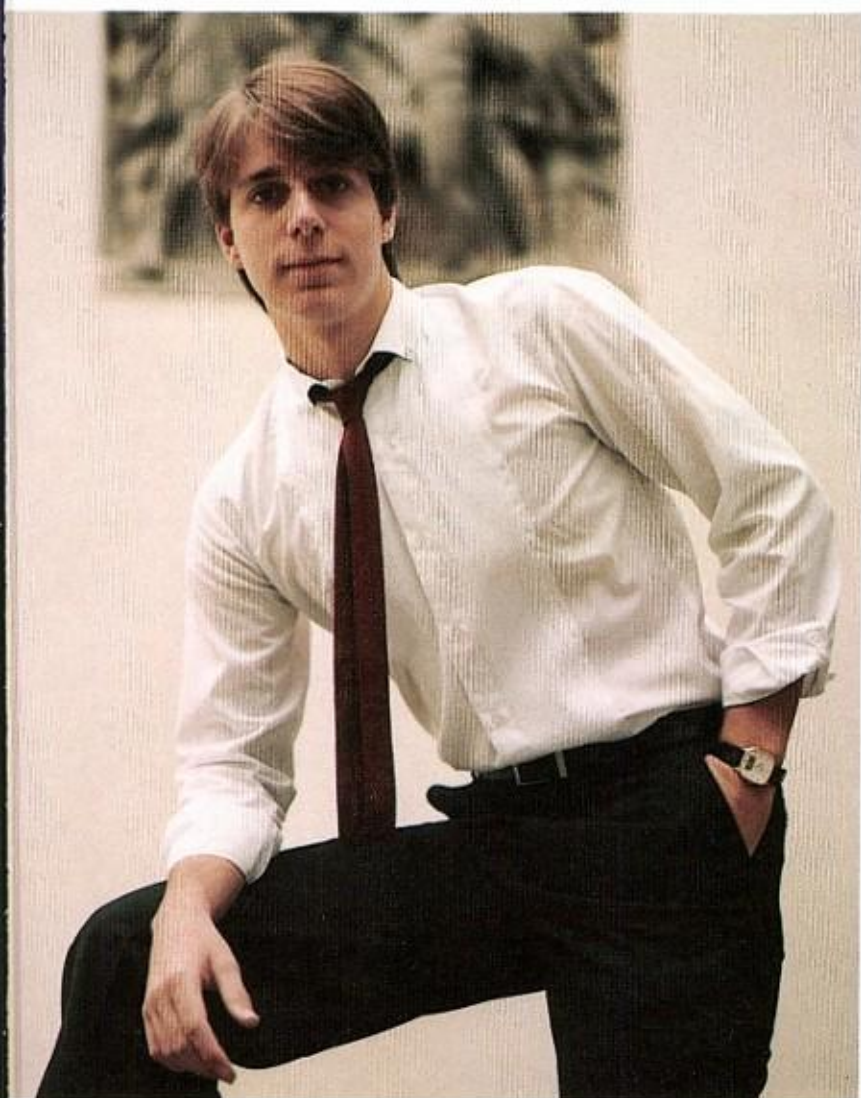

Lonely as God.
-Joaquin Miller

DRUMMOND. (Quietly.) Can you buy back his respectability by making him a coward? (He spades his hands in his hip pockets.) I understand what Bert's going through. It's the loneliest feeling in the world — to find yourself standing up when everybody else is sitting down. To have everybody look at you and say, "What's the matter with him?" I know. I know what it feels like. (Moves D.S. a step.) Walking down an empty street, listening to the sound of your own footsteps. Shutters closed, blinds drawn, doors locked against you. And you aren't sure whether you're walking toward something — or just walking away ... (He takes a deep breath, then turns abruptly.) - Inherit the Wind

Go on be a hero, be a photograph. Make your own myths, Christ I hope they last. - Janis Ian Looking back I see that nothing will change. I can not regain what I've lost, or lose what I've gained, and I never will forget.

It's just words.

Cranbrook Golf- Thanks to Doc VanDam and Mr. Hoffman. Yeah, I'm a player ... shut your mug ... Brad, Jeff, and Steve; Well then, let's do it.

Cranbrook Baseball- Thanks to Mr. Martin and Mr. Sanders. Don't let that sucker ... I.G., R.F., M.W., C.L., J.M., and R.J.H., Varsity baseball is #1.

MARK BENJAMIN BEDFORD

There are places I'll remember all my life . . .
some have gone and some remain.
All these places had their moments with lovers and friends I still can recall in my life I've loved them all. John Lennon and Paul McCartney

Rog, Mr. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Dagbovie, RKH, Doc suicide, and marshmellow - Thank you for all of your help and advice, without it I never would have survived.

Mr. Salas - When I have listened to my mistakes, I have grown. - Hugh Prather

Kurt, Mike, Sharaf, Josh, Tom, Jim, Chris, Short, Alex: Thanks for all of the good times.

No person should be held to answer for every little thing in his past. What's important is who he is now, and what he does. Charles Garry

Lisa - Thank's, it's been . . . well, you know what I mean.

Mom and Dad - It's has been well worth it.

The journey is just beginning - G. O'Neel

JOHN ERIC DUNNING

Books are the compasses and telescopes and sextants and charts which other men have prepared to help us navigate the dangerous seas of human life.
Jesse Lee Bennett

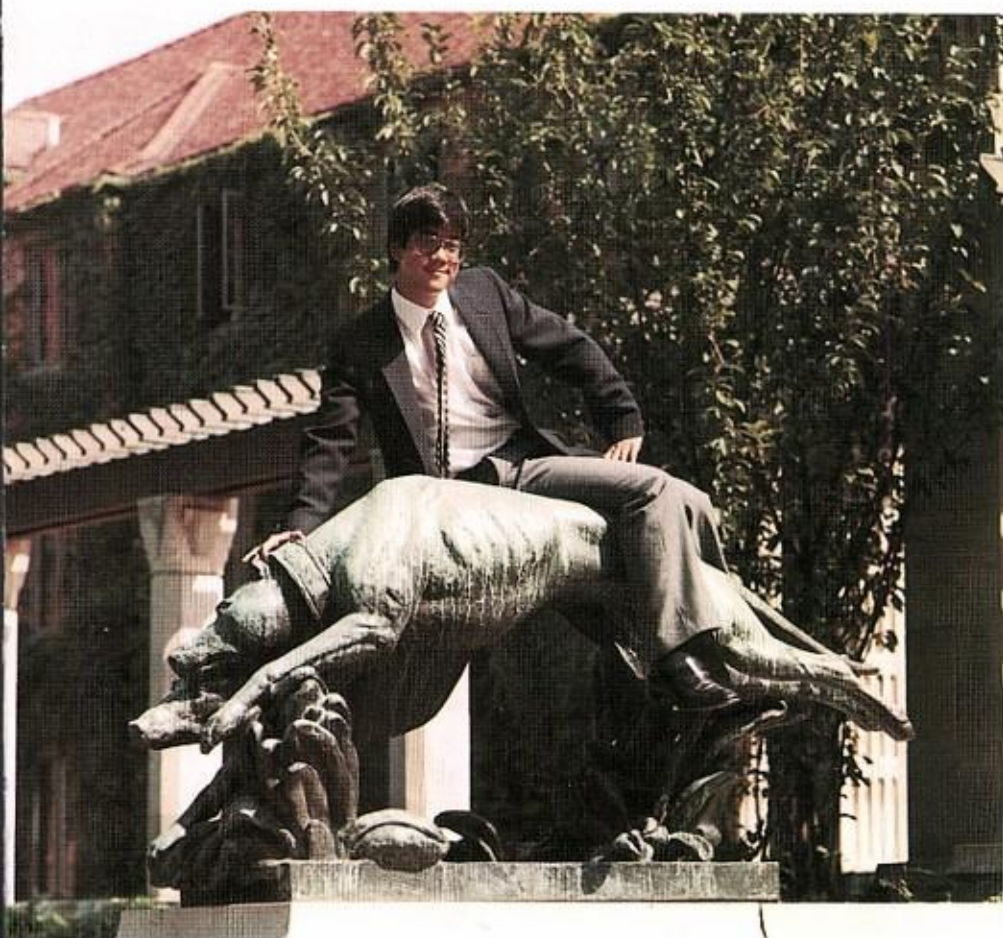

Fame is not popularity It is the spirit of a man surviving himself in the minds and thoughts of other men. - William Hazlitt

If any imagine they will find thought in many books, certainly they will be disappointed. Thought dwells by the stream and the sea, by the hill and in the woodland, in the sunlight and free wind. - Richard Jeffries

To Mrs. Caswell, Mr. Jelliffe, Dr. Pfister, Mr. Drake, Mr. Smith, and Mr.
Mencin. You know you've been great teachers, but you've also been wonderful guidance counselors for me here at Cranbrook. Thank you all.

Wear your learning like your watch, in a private pocket; and do not pull it out, and strike it, merely to show that you have one. - Lord Chesterfield

A big thanks to Mom, Dad, Mark, and Mimi. I never could have made it through these four hard years if it wasn' for your help and never ending encouragement.

SYED ALTAF AHMED

The basic purpose of education is to achieve maturity, not just physical maturity, but intellectual maturity, emotional maturity and above all moral and spiritual maturity. Without maturity there can be no wisdom, no insight, no judgement, no compassion; nor can there be any real understanding of oneself, of other human beings or of the great questions of our time. · John T. McCarthy, M.D.

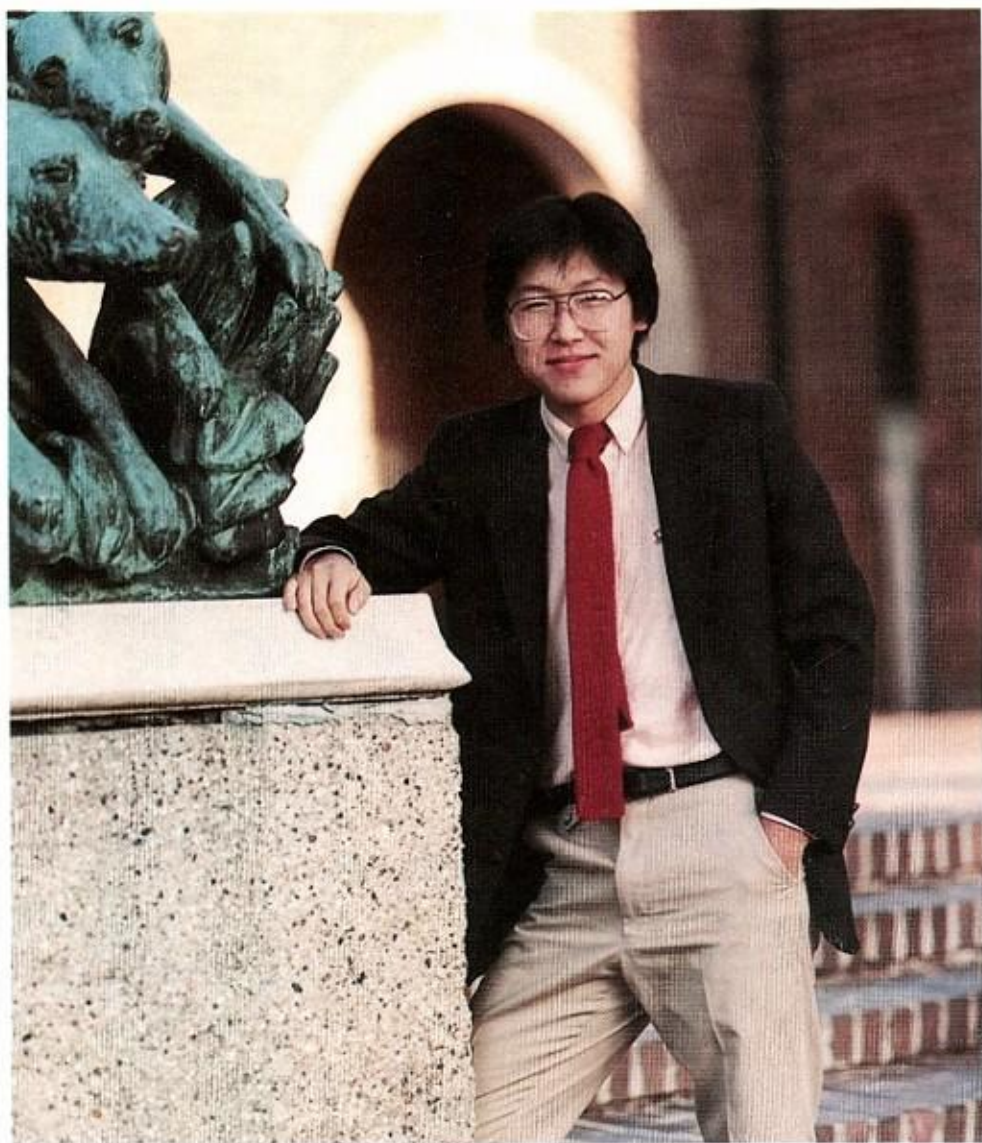

"Life is not a problem to be solved but a reality to be experienced" · Soren Kierkegaard

He has called on the best that was in us. There was no such thing as half-trying. Whether it was running a race or catching a football, competing in school-we were to try. And we were to try harder than anyone else. We might not be the best and none of us were but we were to make the effort to be the best. 'After you have done the best you can', he used to say, 'The hell with it'. · Robert F. Kennedy

Mrs. Wells-Thank you for being a great advisor.

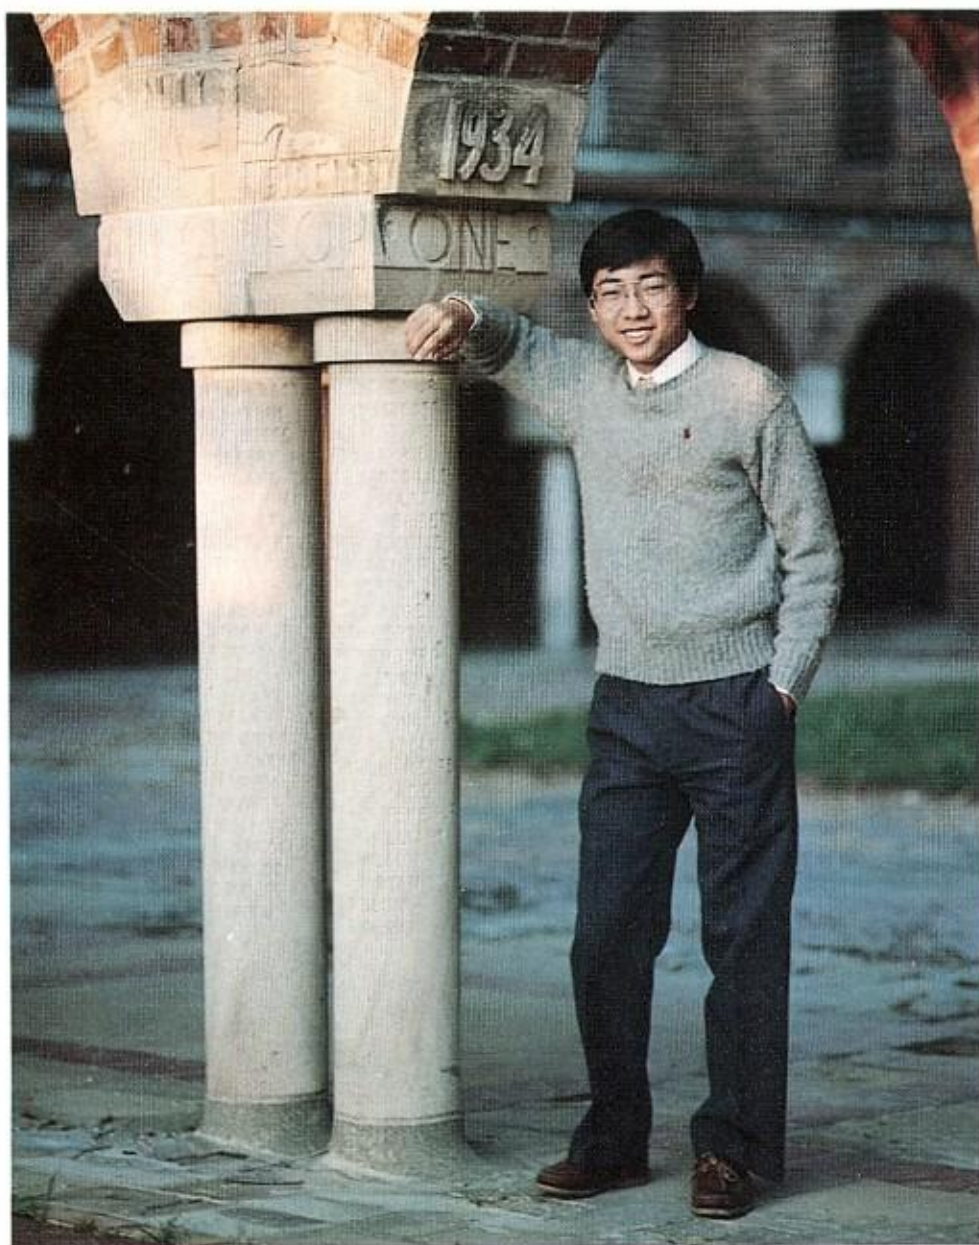

J.D., D.A.-you are both great guys. Thanks.

Mom, Dad, and Eqbal- Thanks for all the advice and guidance you gave me.

DAVID EDWARD RISING

He had several thousand cigarettes lined up, but he hadn't even begun to think how to smoke them. He sat and opened up the book but could not understand anything beyond the first chapter. The language was difficult, the imagery ambiguous and broken. The metaphors didn't register with him, but he thought to himself, "I'll see it all one day, and the pages will burn behind me." Casually he had replaced some views with some other views. To be specific, the new views were Kafka's.

Sam Gregor awoke one morning to find that he was not transformed, but actually the same person that he was the day before. That went on all the time, but started to mean less after that orderly unplugged grandma and the fish started dying because nobody would clean the aquarium. He wasn't to die for many years, so he had to think of something to do, but because it was Sunday morning, he wasn't in the mood for determining destinies. For now, he decided that he would play it by ear.

(This is only the beginning of the beginning)

Twelve months ago Cranbrook School was as distant from my life as Timbuktu, yet now I possess memories that have made up an enlightening and wonderful experience. For this opportunity I am indebted to the English Speaking Union and to Mr. Snyder. I would, also, like to express my thanks to Messrs Graesser, Mencin, Morse, Rutin and especially Mrs. Weaver and Mrs. Snyder. But the last nine months have been so enjoyable because of American hospitality and the tremendous support of my family.

"The gentlemen got up betimes to shoot,
Or hunt: the young, because they liked the sport:
The first thing boys like after play and fruit;
The middle-aged, to make the day more short;
For ennui is a growth of English root,
Though nameless in our language: we retort
The fact for words, and let the French translate
That awful yawn which sleep cannot abate."

There is a small village graveyard in one of the remote corners . . . Like almost all our graveyards, it has a melancholy look; the ditches surrounding it have long been overgrown; grey wooden crosses have fallen askew and rotten under their once painted gables; the gravestones are all out of position, . . . two or three bare trees hardly provide some meager shade; the sheep wander unchecked among the tombs . . . But among them is one grave untouched by human beings and not trampled on by any animal . . . Can it be that their prayers and their tears are fruitless? Can it be that love, sacred devoted love, is not all powerful . . . they tell us not only of eternal peace, of that great peace of "indifferent" nature; they tell us also of eternal reconciliation and of life without end. -Ivan Turgenev

The long-hoped-for bullet was entering his brain . . . Two ginscented tears trickled down the sides of his nose. But it was all right, everything was all right, the struggle was finished. He had won the victory over himself. He loved Big Brother. -George Orwell

When we dragged ourselves in for early practice, everyone was uncertain about the upcoming season. We had lost many players from the '82 term, and it didn't look like we had the guys to fill the void. However, by the end of the year, we had established ourselves as a good team, just two games short of being outstanding. There wasn't a game we couldn't or shouldn't have won. We traveled down to Cleveland to play U.S. After falling behind 21-0, we came back, and after Todd Owen's brilliant two-point reception we had closed to 21-14. But not being able to punch it in from their ten a little later, we were through. As often happens after a loss, we bounced back the next week and beat U of D, 22-0. The defense was the key. It held U of D's "Prep of the Week" to less than 30 yards rushing and also scored a touchdown. The defense continued to shine the next two weeks, as the offense sputtered. Two shutouts, over Hamtramck and Clarenceville, were highlighted by Haggerty's Burger King, Skip's touchdown off a deflected pass, and Ozz's big hit on the Clarenceville sideline. Down 12-6 to Oxford at the half, we were still in the game. The offense was bogged down, and except for Cuzzola's 61-yard touchdown run it would have been shutout city. Without Giampetroni for much of the second half, our defense couldn't hold them, and we suffered our worse loss of the year. Homecoming. That was the big game. Brandon was undefeated, ranked in the top ten of the state, and averaging over 50 points a game. We played our best game of the year and dominated the Blackhawks. Cuzzola scored three touchdowns, Giampetroni drilled Bryan Tilley (the county's leading rusher) all over the field, Rakotz and Hasan opened the holes, and Shilts took their quarterback's head off on a kickoff. We were now back in the league race, and after beating Avondale, for the first time in anyone's memory, we cheered for Brandon to upend Oxford. They did, and Cranbrook had a champion football team for the first time since '76. At 5-2 with two games left, we looked like a great team, but disappointment was headed our way. Having scored easily on our first possession, and then blocking a punt, it seemed like we might destroy Pontiac Northern. However, they rallied to shut down our offense and managed to score twice themselves. Besides Bartow and Otis, who played their usual strong defensive game, we didn't play that well, and when we failed on fourth and goal from their three, all they needed to do was fall on the ball to run out the clock. We didn't bounce back from this emotional setback, and it showed. We practiced unenthusiastically all week and had a lackluster performance against a team we should have been ready to eat for lunch. We lost a boring game by a field goal that I still think was wide.

The 1983 Cranbrook Varsity soccer team began the season hoping to win the State Championships. This dream ended when the Cranes were eliminated in the opening round of the Regionals by Detroit Country Day on October 12. The Cranes lost the game in the third overtime period. After constant pressure by Cranbrook in the overtime periods, the Bees scored the winning goal with a single counter-attack. DCD eventually lost to the University of Liggett who went on to win the Class B title. Cranbrook was the only team in Michigan to defeat ULS in the 1983 season. (5-3)

Cranbrook's final record, 9-8-1, was not entirely indicative of the true strength of the team. The Cranes played an extremely difficult schedule, certainly one of the toughest in the state.

It is difficult to summarize the 1983 soccer season. Although they were unable to fulfill their goal of winning the state title, the goal was certainly a realistic one. They never seemed to stray from their objective. There were times of doubt and disillusionment, but there was always hope. Often, falling short of one's goals makes everything seem worthless, but this was not the case.

The Cranbrook Golf Team compiled an impressive list of accomplishments in its 1983 fall season. While achieving a 9-5 dual meet record, the team successfully defended its N.O.A.C. title and was also co-champion of the newly formed Tri-County Golf League. In addition, the Cranes placed a respectable 10th place (out of 38 teams) at the Oakland County Tournament - perhaps the most competitive high school event in the state. Paced by senior Rob Lorts' medalist winning 78 and Captain Brad Monks' third place 80, the Cranes captured their fifth consecutive regional title establishing the team's dominance of Class B golf in southeastern Michigan. The team also placed sixth overall in the Class B State Finals.

The team was led by returning veterans Rob Lorts, Jeff Weiss, Steve Pool, Brad Monks, Jeff Feldman, and John Sotiroff. Newcomers to the 1983 squad were Connor Grant, Dave Nosanchuk, Kurt Johnson, and Mark Wright. Although the team lacked experience the Cranbrook golfers continually proved their ability as the season progressed. Because the season's matches were often plagued by inclement weather, the team members were forced to adjust to adverse conditions. The Cranes' regional victory, which was one of the highlights of their season, took place in freezing temperatures and forty mile per hour winds. The first place finish was certainly indicative of the team's growth.

The 1983 golf season was unique for other reasons. The Cranbrook golfers worked for the first time with sports psychologist Mike Zinn to improve mental attitudes on the course. The team played a variety of new courses because of its move into the Tri-County League and the acquisition of an additional home course - Forest Lake Country Club. The team also recorded its first hole-in-one ever, which was hit by David Nosanchuk at Pontiac Country Club.

The 1983-84 term was a very important one for the Dorm Council. Under the precise leadership of president Eric Koepele, the Council saw the new student center open and become a success. The Dorm Council is very proud of the new student center but also realizes the danger of riding on past accomplishments. Next year's leadership has been groomed and will be ready to take on more challenges in order to make life for boarders as enjoyable as possible. The Dorm Council has definitely come into full bloom as one of the most influential student organizations on campus and shows every indication of the strength and vitality necessary to continue healthy operation. We owe a large debt of gratitude to the 1983-84 Dorm Council. You are the cream of the crop.

COMPUTER TEAM

The Cranbrook Varsity Computer Team, under the leadership of Admiral Richard Lamb, compiled a whopping 2 · 2 record in league matches. We did distinguish ourselves in the categories of bickering, complaining, and making stupid mistakes, with Phil MacKenzie and Mike Kaplan taking top honors in the last category. The Team got off to a fast start, winning the first two matches. Overconfidence and questionable rules joined forces to stifle our hopes for league championship.

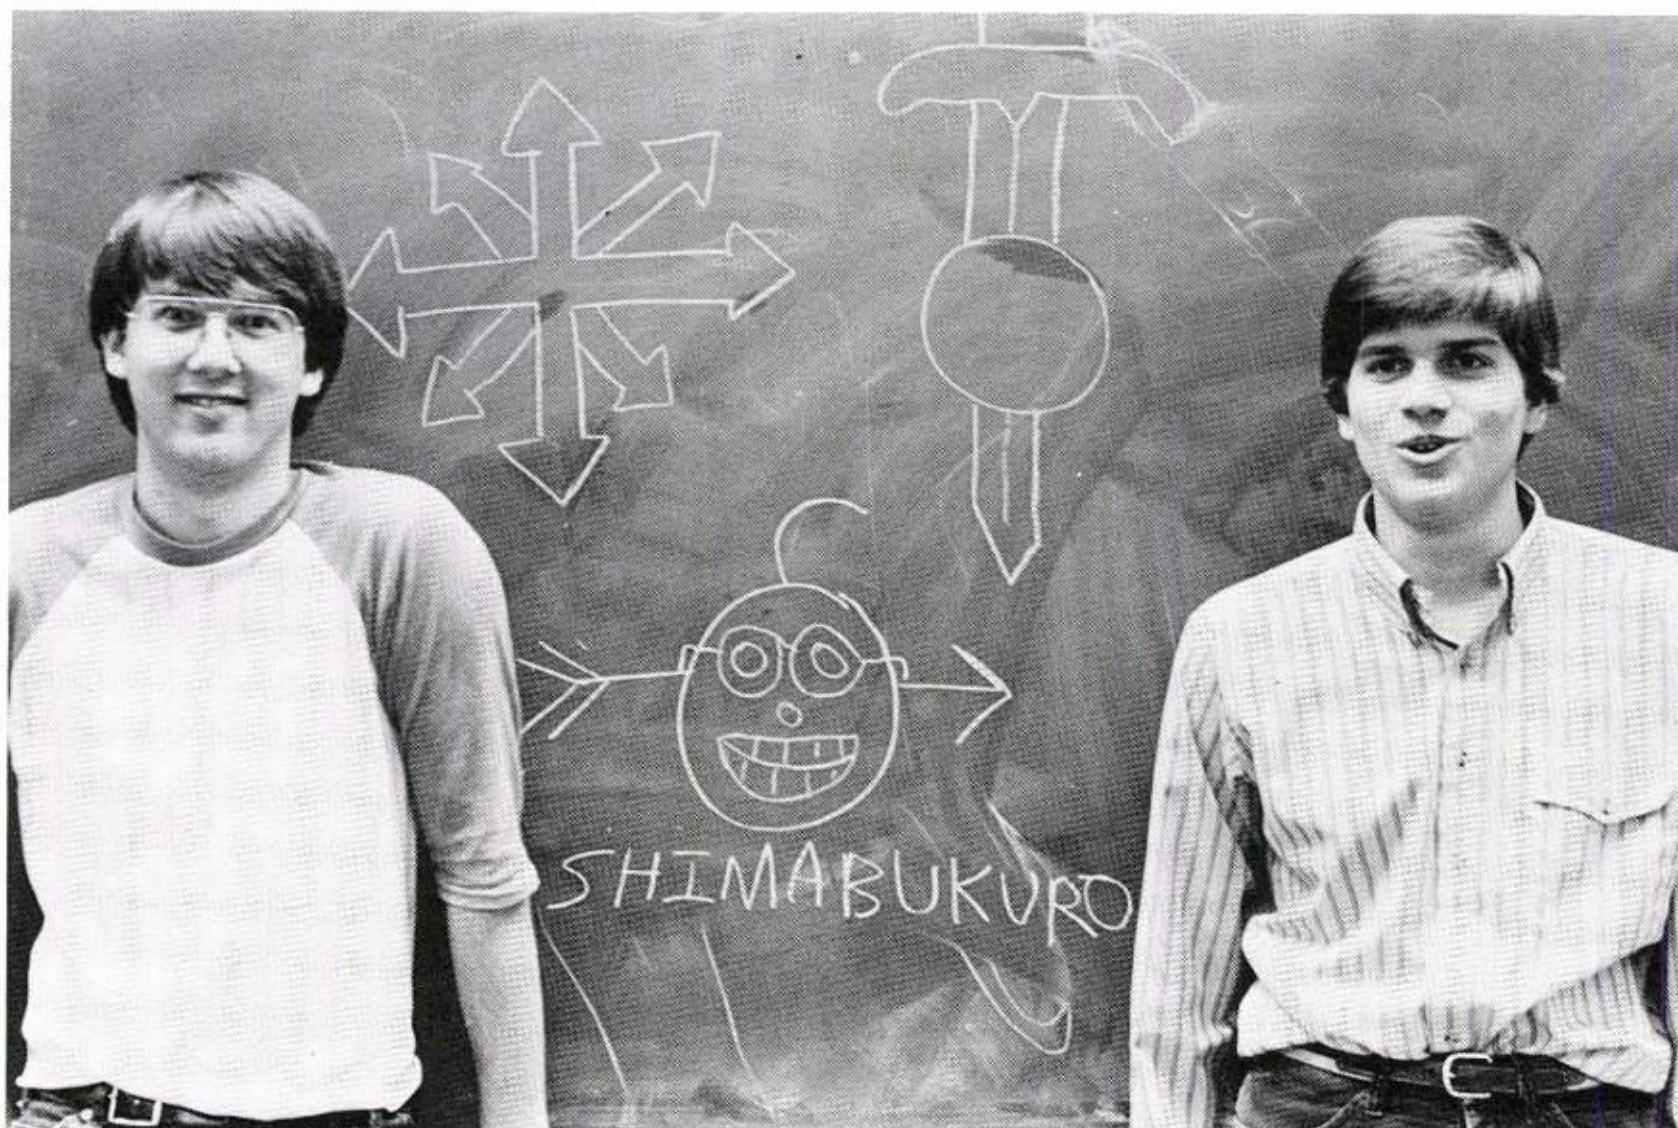

The high point of the season was the University of Detroit Computer Science Tournament, to which the four best members of the team were summoned. The first group, Phil (Let's beat DCD) MacKenzie, Scott (Let's beat North Farmington) Berk, Mark (Let's beat the Commies) Mueller, and Steve (Oh, I overslept) Odinetz went to the qualifying tournament. After qualifying, the same group (except Kevin Olbrich in place of Mark Mueller) went to the final tournament, and came in fourth place. The top four teams in the tournament finished all the problems, but we were beaten by the tie-breaking point system. There were over sixty teams in the tournament.

NOTE: The programmers on this team would like to inform all the disbelievers in the school that the tournament winners are not based on Pac-Man scores.

We, the Programmers, must be able to mentally solve problems, work logically and efficiently, and be creative. We, the Programmers, mold the future of today, solving previously unsolvable questions. We, the Programmers, are believers in the one omniscient and omnipotent supreme being. IBM.

Cranbrook Society Of Tactical And Strategic Simulations

OFFICERS: Ed Noall, Marc Shimabukuro, Tom Borninski.

Cranbrook Society of Tactical and Strategic Simulations:

CSoTaSS was founded September 29, 1982, by a group of pioneering young men to aid in their quest for achieving the Cranbrook ideal "Aim High." On each Saturday members are involved in such activities as evaluating conflicts between nations, raising vast magical armies of undead to conquer and pillage helpless citizenry, or launching space fleets to engage evil (or good) interstellar forces. CSoTaSS employs as vehicles for these events such features as "Diplomacy," "Third Reich," "Traveller," "Divine Right," and a small, diehard contingent of "Dungeons & Dragons" aficionados.

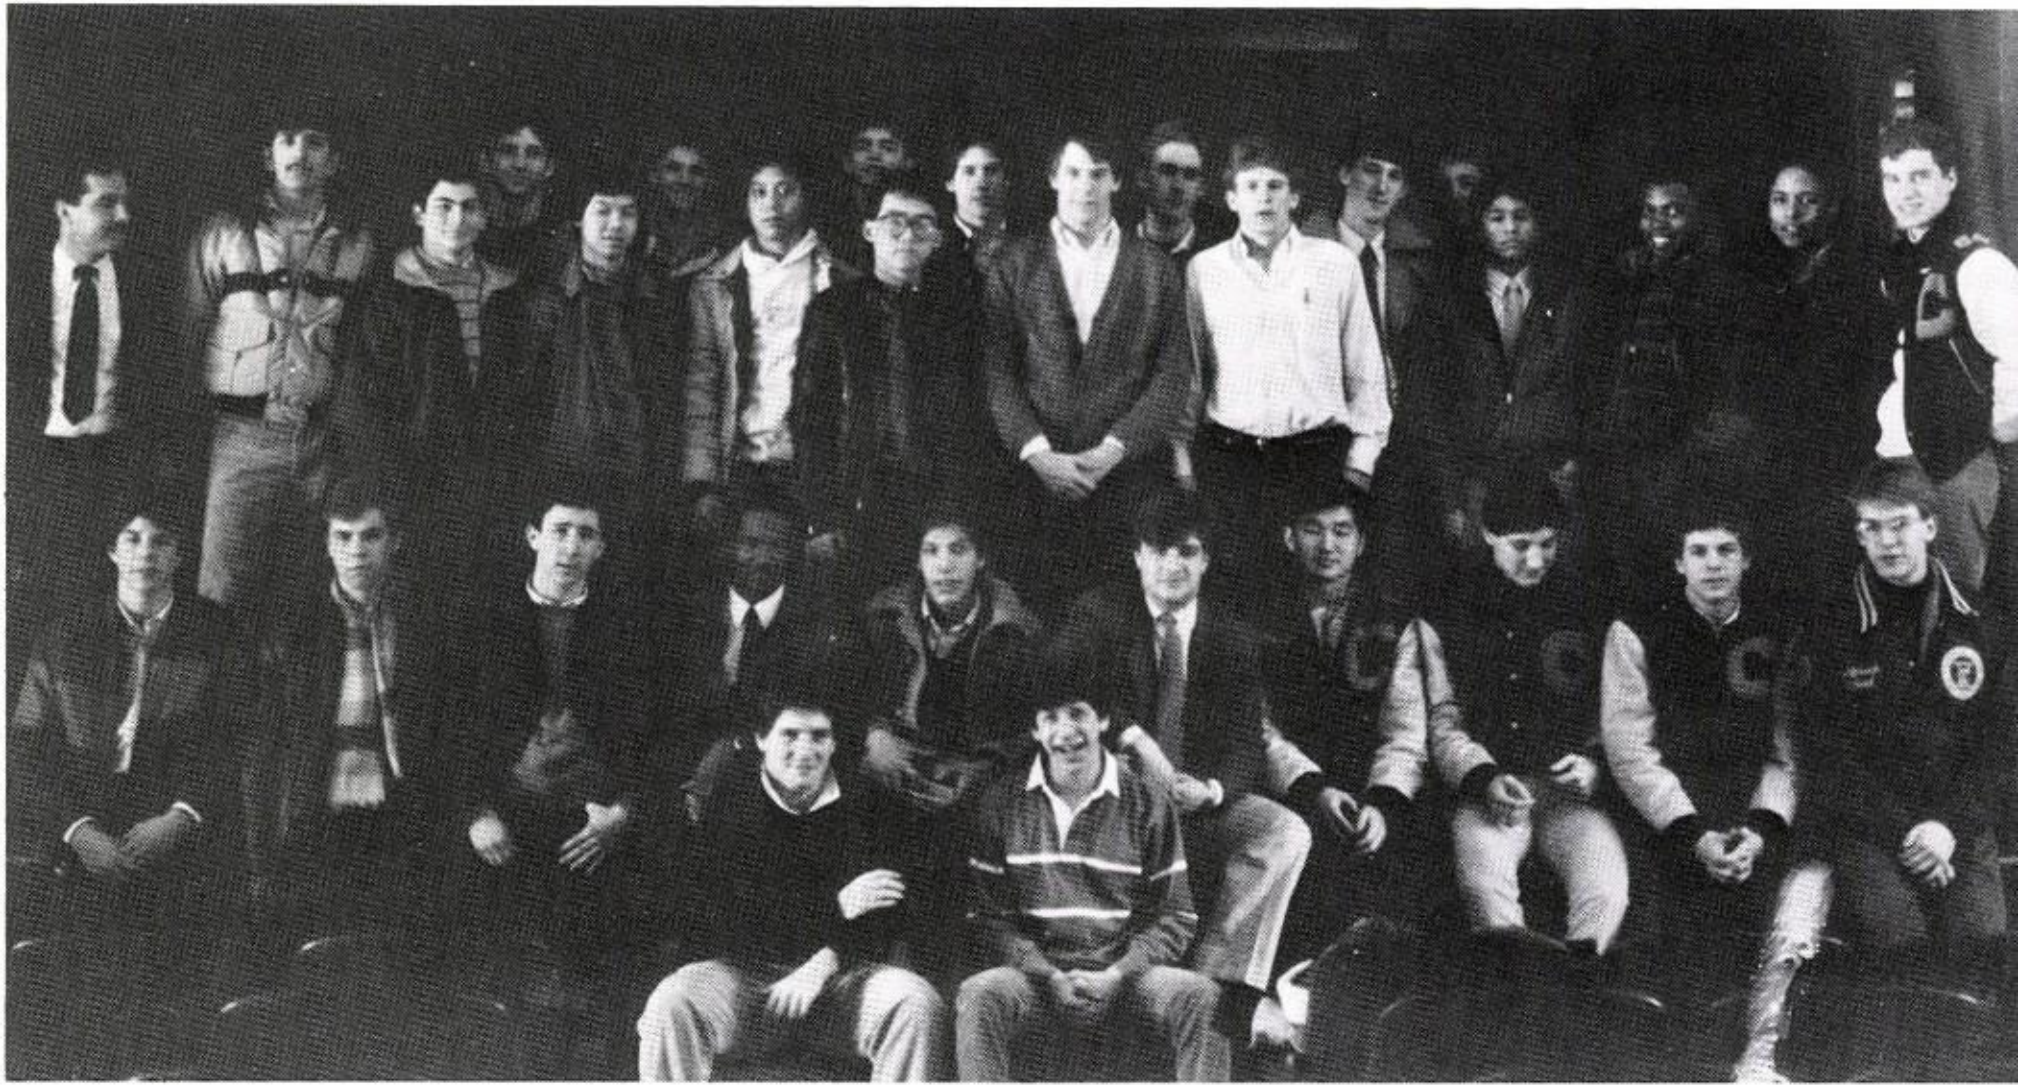

This year's hierarchy consists of charter members President Tom "L'etat- c'est moi" Borninski, Co-President Marc "Kamakazi" Shimabukuro, and Vice-President Ed "Revenge at any cost" Noall.

Many observers, commenting on the tense, expectant atmosphere in the chamber, reported having been exposed to frequent explosive tirades like:

- "WHAT DO YOU MEAN the Black Hand can't participate in a siege?!"
- "You're darn right I can convoy through Denmark!"
- "I'm not going to attack your country. You can trust me."
- "Beam me up, Scotty."

This first yearbook appearance of CSoTaSS is dedicated to Doug "The Iron Hand" Williamson, Class of 1983, our founding father. Doug's philosophy for club organization was that of "This is a self-appointed democracy." An occasion which exemplified this precept was the past election of officers when he said, "Any member can vote on any issue, but only mine counts."

"No, I don't think so It's too pretentious. Nobody'd believe we were for real."

"But I don't think reality is the issue. What we're dealing with is concepts that go beyond reality and into the realm of quality literature."

"But isn't reality a prerequisite for quality?"

"No, no, a thousand times no! The two are mutually exclusive."

"So where does that leave us?"

"Lost. Drifting on a sea of questionable literature. Sifting the sands of prose and poetry to find the few grains of publishable material. Searching frantically for boatloads of submissions that we seem to have lost. Facing a deadline with barely enough accepted pieces to fill a classified ad in The Village Voice."

"So what do we do?"

"Hide. 'The majority of men lead lives of quiet desperation,'¹ you know."

Design In America The Cranbrook Vision

"The 50th Anniversary of the Academy marks the school's return to eminence, for Cranbrook (Academy of Arts) is re-emerging as one of this country's finest academies of art and design . . ."

— Connoisseur, April 1983

The above statement is but one example of the praise and acclaim being received by that "other school" on our campus, the Cranbrook Academy of Arts. Its founding in 1933 marked a fantastic development of architecture and decorative arts in America. The Academy was one of the only institutions that offered courses in design in the 1920's and 1930's, and its sway over such artistic endeavors as architecture, interior design, and crafts after World War II was powerful and deeply felt. Many of the artists and craftsmen involved in the development of the Academy became or already were world-famous; the faculty included such notables as Maija Grotell (the "mother of ceramics"), Richard Thomas (who played a similar role in metalsmithing), Marianna Strengell (one of the outstanding weavers of her time), and of course Eliel Saarinen and Carl Milles. The same can be said of the Academy's graduates, including Eero Saarinen (often said to have eclipsed his father), Ralph Rapson and Harry Weese in architecture, Duane Hanson in sculpture, Harry Bertoia in sculpture and furniture design, Charles and Ray Eames in design and films, Florence Knoll in furniture and interiors, Niels Diffrient in industrial design, Edmund Bacon in city planning, and the list goes on. Earlier this year, in a project that took years to plan and complete, and involved a great number of scholars and students from across the country, the full scope of Cranbrook's tremendous impact on design in America was featured, first at the Detroit Institute of Arts, then at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. It was later travel across the Atlantic to France, Finland, and England. One of the main focal points of the exhibition entitled Design in America, The Cranbrook Vision, 1925 - 1950, which is the first major design show at the DIA since 1949, is the setting of the Cranbrook Educational Community. With 290 acres of beautiful, scenic countryside, including 40 acres of gardens and some of the finest sculpture and architecture in America, Cranbrook is finally being heralded as it richly deserves. Two of the major parts of the section of the exhibition covering CEC grounds are highly detailed scale models of Cranbrook and Kingswood schools. The models are made entirely of wood, and are built on a one-twelfth inch to one foot scale. They required over 7500 hours of work by Art Academy Architecture students. The Cranbrook gate out onto Lone Pine Road (west of the Dining Hall) was also taken as part of the traveling exhibit, and is pictured below. In addition, a Cranbrook Dining Hall chair was taken. In all, approximately 200 masterworks produced by more than 30 Cranbrook faculty and students trace the development of the Academy from its founding to the 1950 death of Eliel Saarinen. Works from the 1960's were included to show the continuing influence of Cranbrook on many artists. Accompanying the exhibit will be a comprehensive book published by Abrams Inc., containing essays by scholars from throughout the United States. Its title is the same as that of the exhibit's, and sells for $25 in softcover. According to Roy Slade, President of the Academy, "the Exhibition and book will celebrate both our legacy and the beginning of our second 50 years. They will bring increased recognition and acclaim not only to the Academy but to all of Cranbrook Educational Community."

The New Student Center

After almost two years of hard work, a student center for all Cranbrook and Kingswood students became a realized dream. For years many members of the community had recognized the need for such a center. Unfortunately no further steps were taken other than informal discussions. That is, until last year. Under the dynamic leadership of Kris Sirchio and Mark Stanton, co-presidents of the dorm council, the council formally brought the idea of a student center to the attention of the school. After surveying many possible locations, the old rifle range was decided upon as being the best location. Tag Galyean later discovered when searching through Eliel Saarinen's blueprints for the dorms that this room had been labelled by Saarinen "playroom." Tag and Kris furthered the project by cleaning out the rifle range and having Tag's father, who happens to be an architect, do blueprints of the work that would have to be done to renovate the room. This material was submitted to Mr. Salas under the name of "The Great Restoration, Part II." Mr. Salas and Mr. Walden were very excited about the project and managed to find the funds to complete the project. After many months of construction with labor supplied by Cranbrook's own maintenance department and supervised by Mr. Parden the room opened in February. The Grand Opening was attended by the vast majority of the student body as well as many faculty. After a thoroughly enjoyable evening, the room was dubbed a success. Mr. Walden and the 1983-84 dorm council should be commended for a fine job in following this project through to the end and making its first year of operation a success. Finally the center must be passed on to the future.

It debuted with an optimism and enthusiasm that has certainly influenced almost everyone at Cranbrook and Kingswood. One can only hope that this feeling will continue and that the center will become a very important part of the school. The facilities are there, only human input is required.

Scratch 'N Sniff

In an effort to halt the senseless escalation of enmity between the publications at Cranbrook /Kingswood, and in the spirit of generosity and good will, the 1984 Brook editors have magnanimously offered to incorporate the final issue of "The Crane-Clarion" in the pages of this year's book. We do this in the sincere hope that henceforth both publications will be able to collaborate in an atmosphere of mutual trust, respect, and harmony.

Dawkins Returns To Cranbrook

An Open Letter to the Men of Cranbrook School from General Peter W. Dawkins (Ret.) '55

September 7, 1983

Gentlemen:

Last spring I stood before you in Christ Church to impart with deep regret that I had resigned my commission in the United States Army. I was not then at liberty to explain that my decision was made for the honor of a higher calling to this school. After intensive deliberations among the Board of Governors, the administration, and myself, I secretly accepted the position of Commander-in-Chief of the newly re-established Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) here at Cranbrook. Now, with the departure of chief Dan Martin, I feel it is high time to assert our noble cause and bring my appointment to public attention.

Amidst the rising tide of international apprehension, the growing threat of global thermonuclear war, and the omnipresent danger to our dining hall chairs, now more than ever has Cranbrook shown its colors. Under my charismatic leadership and with the assistance of Major Dave "Nuke the Gay Unborn Whales for Jesus" Cox and Captain John "Who Would Pledge A Man Like You?" Shilts, we can train the best dang crack regiment of American high school troops this side of the Grand River. With a tradition of patriotic devotion to the causes of freedom and democracy proudly behind us, you young men may take up the gauntlet and follow in the footsteps of our great military leaders: Washington, Eisenhower, and Dawkins. And despite the efforts of some weak-kneed, lily-livered, pinko liberal members of the academic intelligentsia to dissuade you from the inevitable confrontation between the forces of good (us) and the forces of evil (them), wiser heads have prevailed. I have every faith in your ability to crush our enemies, to drive them back into the rice paddies and gulags from which they come. The Spanish philosopher George Santayana described what he found here (after they lost his two-bit, buffalo-chip country to the socialists) as, "A fund of vigor, goodness and hope such as no other nation ever possessed." Well, I'm darn glad to be an American, but even prouder to wear my Cranbrook class ring. With the help of faculty and you, we can return Fort Cranbrook to the bastion of capitalism for which it once stood. I say:

For God, for man, and for Cranbrook's men in uniform!
Amen.

General Peter W. Dawkins
Commander-in-Chief

HOCKEY TEAM HELD IN RUSSIA

Day 64! Regrettably there are no new developments to report in the State Department's on-going efforts to free Cranbrook's hockey team from its two-month incarceration behind the Iron Curtain. Moscow authorities persist in their allegations charging team members with posing lewdly in public with Pink Panther dolls, claimed to be the team's official mascots. Morale among the hostages remains high, according to a spokesman from the coaching staff, which is being housed separately in the Gorky Park Hilton. In a recent press release Coach Kelley observed stoically that "Pain builds character," adding that the hostages very much appreciated last week's Dining Hall shipment of Chicken McNuggets, Duke of Rib, and Apple Surprise.

Editorial: My Last Complaints

It is spring, practically summer, and the time has almost come for seniors to pass on into the real world and leave the cloistered corridors of KINGSWOOD and cranbrook (note the alliteration) behind. As I write these words, I realize that this is the last editorial I will write about problems (i.e. situations requiring our attention) at Kingswood and cranbrook. Oh well. A good thing can't last forever. However, this last chance to speak out against the oppressions, tortures, and other nasty things our capitalistic/chauvinistic administration imposes on our overworked, burdened, and really tired heads will not be taken lightly by me.

There are problems at Kingswood and cranbrook. BIG problems. So big I am once again compelled to write out against those blindingly horrid atrocities over which so much sleep is lost by the maltreated, malnourished student (like me). You know, dear readers, as well as I do what these scary, terrifying matters are. I'm talking about sexism, racism, AP fatigue, classroom pressure, peer pressure, alcohol abuse, the world food crisis, cranbrook guys throwing rocks at the geese, and not being able to go into cranbrook dorm rooms. Ooooh, it makes me sooo angry!! I know some of you might not agree that these are major problems, but this is only because you have become so accustomed to being emotionally and intellectually suppressed that you have been blinded to the truth. Believe me, I know. And it is my duty to wake you up out of your feeble-mindedly comatose states!

My disgruntlement is really burgeoning about the pressure around here. Noooo, kiddies, I don't mean the pressure our 2×10^{12} tons of beautifully designed Saarinen architecture, resplendent with glorious tributes to art and complete with its own traveling sideshow, exerts on our collective foreheads. You guessed it, I'm talking about the pressure our 2×10^{12} tons of faculty members and administrators exert when riding our collective backs!! We stay up late at night combating this pressure, and what do we get in return? We end up like zombies, automatically making our ways from class to class, oblivious to our very surroundings! Talk about Day of the Living Dead! When's the last time you noticed a Saarinen arch? Why are we put through this? Huh, tell me why? Why?

And the differences between Kingwood and cranbrook get me soooo frustrated! I mean, cranbrook has a tower and we don't and they have an oval and we don't — this is so unfair! All we have is a carp-infested lake, and even the carp are sick! The poor fishies! And have you heard the jokes that guys tell about Woodies? Like "How many Woodies does it take to—". Well, never mind. They're all a bunch of blasphemous boors!

You know what makes me the most angry? What makes me most angry is that I am the one who always has to write the editorials for the paper!!! I get really sick of having to think of something controversial to write about every month! Why don't any of you write in? I could be doing my Phys/Cal (AP of course) right now instead of writing this stupid half-page filler, but nooooo — last year's editors had to stick me (of all people) with this job! Why me, tell me? Why?

Not that it matters anyway. I got accepted to Harvard (the best and only school around) five months ago, and I've been waiting all this time just to stick it but good to everyone and anyone who would listen! So there! Naaa-naah! Does it hurt yet?

Let me leave you with one piece of advice. If the pressure gets to be too much and you're feeling really low — eat a bigger lunch. It's the only way you'll ever make it. By the way, good luck to next year's editors. As they say in Proverb-land, "when the going gets tough, the tough get going." See you later, kiddies.

Thank you.

—You know who.

Student Profile: Kip Edmunds

Kip Edmunds, better known to his friends as Kip Edmunds, is one of Cranbrook's most endearing personalities. His outward qualities are noble beyond expectation. Few would dispute his powerful influence on the field, to his face at least. His tennis game, on the other hand, is passable, but with a gin bottle in hand, he can serve up a wicked G&T. And as for fashion, Kip wins the "Best Dressed Male On A No Credit Limit American Express Gold Card" award hands down. It's no matter that the rest of us can never find Polo socks at any store in Birmingham, let alone afford them. Kip proudly maintains the largest collection this side of Grosse Pointe. But then who deserves it more than he? We're pink and green with envy.

His contributions to school social life cannot be measured. Kip has given some of the best parties your reporter has ever had the pleasure to attend. Pity you weren't invited, but then you didn't meet Mummy and Daddy in Switzerland after the Wilderness Expedition, did you? Tant Pis! That's French you know. Kip can't speak it, and we hear tell he can't do it either. But it's not the social activities or campus intellectual atmosphere that benefit most from Kippy's presence. No, it's the friendly grin one sees while walking down the hall, the flash of all those perfectly white teeth (Joan Rivers should have it as good), and the general warmth he exudes. Such fine qualities as these have prompted the faculty to award Kip the prestigious "Boob Award", presented annually to award that senior who best exemplifies the "joie de vivre" promoted by our founders.

A fine craftsman as well, Kip has managed to complete an astounding two projects in four years. His latest piece, a "Keep Out" sign for his country club's gate, has won state and national awards in juried competition. "And boy," says Kip, "was that jury fair. I know for sure there was a Black, a woman, two Jews, and a cripple making the decision." He continues (in 25 words or less), "Of all the high grades I've ever received, my 'A' in shop, oh I mean Wood/Arts, has been the most significant. I actually earned this one."

Shop instructor (and gonzo coach of the Cranbrook Ski Team), Andrew Fisherman concurs, "Kip's performance in Wood/Arts has surpassed my wildest expectations. This guy's a real trooper ... and I like his cologne."

For all his effort, Kip has been more than amply rewarded. The Council of Admission at Duck University in Duran-Duran, N.C. has offered him a place in its freshmen class. Dr. I.M. Prolix, formerly of Bendix here in Detroit, President of the University, who personally extended the invitation via singing gorilla-gram writes, "I am privileged to have known the Edmunds family for generations. Although I've not met Kip, his father's golf handicap is proof enough for me that Kip is our kind of man. I feel certain that he will conduct his studies at Duck with equally intensive rigor as he has so ably shown himself to do while at Cranbrook. His success is assured."

This newspaper can only echo the remarks of Dr. Prolix; to say more would be an insult to Kip's modesty. Our best wishes to an outstanding young scholar, athlete, and human bean.

BROOK WINS JOURNALISM AWARD

For the sixth consecutive year the Brook has won the coveted Grand Prize in the yearbook category of the Columbia Journalism Awards. This year, as always, thousands of entries were submitted from across the nation.

To win a first-class distinction, a yearbook must capture 850 of the 1000 possible points in the five categories of content/coverage, writing/editing, design/display, creativity, and humor. The Brook, we are informed, accomplished this handily.

Good job guys. You really deserve it. We're happy for you. Honest.

1984 Senior May Project

In the early Seventies tradition dictated that all Cranbrook seniors finish their course work by the end of April in order to spend the month of May involved in an off-campus job. This transition from the classroom to the business office afforded an invaluable learning experience: an introduction to the nine-to-five workday world that often led to a long-term career choice. Whether it be working with an accounting firm or a bank, contributing behind the scenes to a production at the Fisher Theater, or assisting on a hospital ward, seniors were thereby able to complement their bookish background with a "hands-on" job experience. Oddly enough, however, the tradition gradually lost its appeal until it disappeared altogether.

Recently though, the Curriculum Committee — in conjunction with the Career Day Planning Task Force, Teamsters' Local #468, and the Elliott-Larsen Civil Rights Commission — has labored to restore this purposeful tradition, providing many members of the Class of '84 with an opportunity to roll up their sleeves and benefit from on-the-job training. The accompanying photos scarcely begin to do justice to the rich range of job opportunities that enterprising seniors tackled this May, contributing their manifold talents to the resurging economy of the Motor City.

Dulce Et Decorum Est

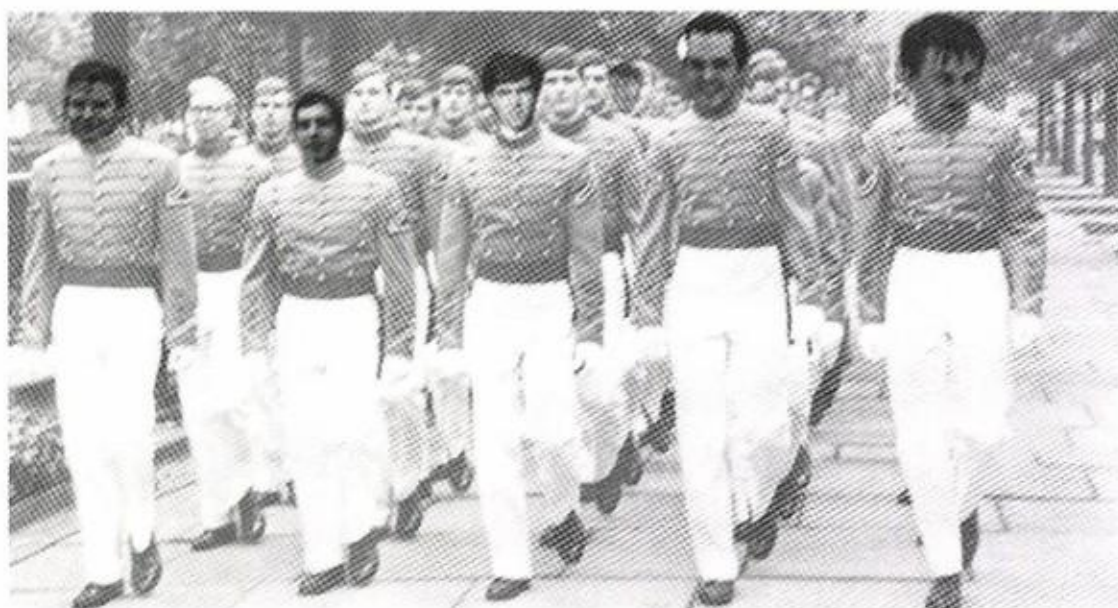

Certainly the single most significant new development at Cranbrook in the year of '84 was the implementation of the school-wide ROTC program, conceived by the Faculty over the summer months preceding the opening of classes. Some were surprised by what seemed to be a radical departure from the cloistered, Ivory Tower atmosphere of this erstwhile haven of Bohemian Prep. But others, more in tune with the political winds of change in these feckless days, understood immediately the appropriateness of Cranbrook's call to arms. In light of what the Morehead Scholarship Review Board has termed "an unabated Red menace that threatens to infiltrate and defile the very moral fabric of our most hallowed democratic institutions and to corrupt our precious bodily fluids, "the bugle has sounded its note, and as the student body was inspirationally informed at Convocation, "Uncle Sam Salas Wants You!" Not only must schoolboys gird their loins to preclude the horror of an imminent nuclear holocaust in defense of their country, but, as the world-touring Cranbrook Art Exhibit has dearly reminded us, Cranbrook must protect its rich artistic heritage, its invaluable art projects, from the mongrel hordes of Philistines who liberally visit its campus, strewing debris in the Quad, wandering purposelessly through its halls, boisterously attending athletic contests, and in general endangering the environs. Cranbrook's sons have rallied to the call, and we are proud to include in the following pages an all-too-brief coverage of the timely militarization of our beloved campus. We stand prepared to fight ignorance and tyranny at home and in trouble-spots around the globe. It is our mission, and we know that George Booth and Eliel Saarinen, whose noble name we invoke to guard our steps and rule our lives always, bless these endeavors. With pride we sing of arms and of the men . . .

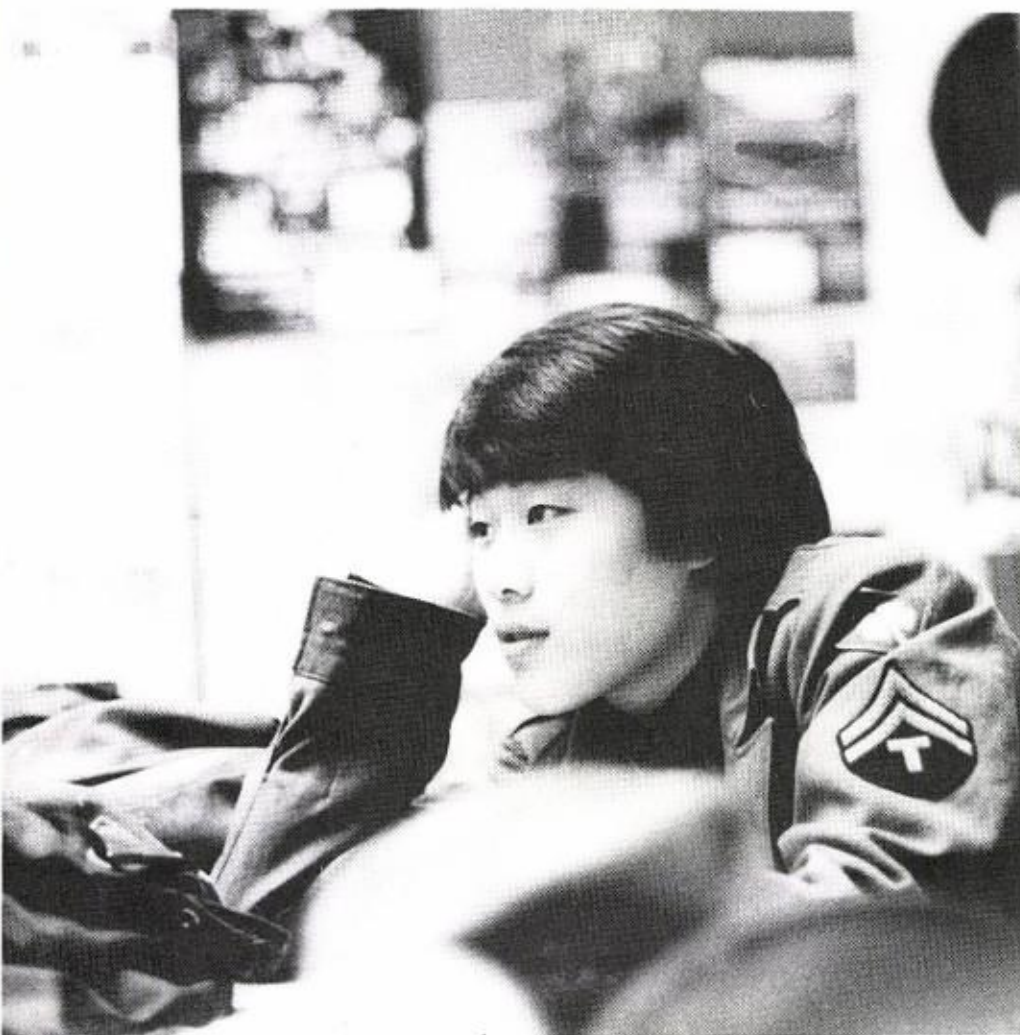

Cranbrook! Thy name a glowing symbol live!
To future sons an inspiration give.
Tho' eyes grow dim, tho' strength be past, yet we,
Till life is done, shall ever cherish Thee.

To Twitch, Witch, and Bitch:

I can't even express my gratitude, love, and affection for the three of you. You're my closest friends; you've helped me so many times. But you've been so damn subversive. Tough s-t, ITCH. To Berkowitz, Roth, and Kelley:

Thank you for being my mentors, and helping me struggle through the year. You've taught me so much and you've been fantastic friends.

Love, ANITA.

Dearest Itch, Bitch, and Twitch:

I love you all and thank you most graciously for being my best friends at Kingswood.

Love and Tough S-t.

Kendall the Witch

Danny, thanks for letting me wear all your clothes. Love  Paul C., Still waiting for someone, huh? Thank you so much for being a friend when I really needed one. How about an anticapitalistic game of Monopoly?

To my fellow subversives:

Anita, get some common sense, coordination, and Haagen-Dazs. Chika, don't be such an obnoxious twitch. Kendall, hey suitee. It's my turn to get the pineapple. You have made it all worthwhile. Thank you so much for all the ice cream, laughter, advice, tears, water fights, and fun.

Love Debbie

P.S. Itch, Twitch, and Witch, Tough S-t.

Sue and Sharonie, wanna go to a party? ... "But Miss, you don't understand, we weren't drinking, it was a 'pure' accident." ... "Peefs, where's my shoe?" "Um, officer, could you please shine your flashlight over here, I think it's in the mud." ... "Lawn damage? But it's just a ditch." ... "I just don't want the girls to get in trouble." ... "Okay, now that we're out of the ditch, let's go find the beef." ... "Can I see your license please?" ... "Gosh damn, Peefs, good thing I be sixteen again." ... "The ground can keep the change." ... "I wish we were in Canada." "But Sharones, we're only an hour late." ... "Just call me sheepdog." ... "Just call me turtle" ... "Just call me in love." Peefs, Sue, Sharonie.

Marcita,

You are the love of my life. I want to thank you for always being here by my side during the hard times and the great times. I love you today, I loved you yesterday, and I'll love you tomorrow, for as long as tomorrows come.

To Dr. Roth - Thanks for enlightening me and making my stay pleasurable. I'll always remember you. By the way, where are my papers? All my friends, teachers, and advisor (you know who you are) - To contradict X Charles Dickens, it can only be called "The Best of Times". "It's just a man failing to reappear, that's all - now you see him, now you don't, that's the only thing that's real: Here one minute and gone the next and never coming back ... " It's time to go. I do move. Ravi

CONSIDER THE NEW BARCLAY YOUR BEST "GUEST BEDROOM"

We'll welcome your out-of-town family and friends to a cozy new guest room with traditional touches of brass, rich fabrics and warm colors, plus a dozen delightful little surprises like our exceptionally thick and thirsty towels.

In the morning, they'll awaken refreshed to find a morning newspaper at their door and a complimentary Continental breakfast of croissants, just squeezed juice and freshly brewed coffee awaiting them in the English lobby.

LOCATED AT MAPLE & HUNTER. CALL 646-7300 FOR RESERVATIONS.

Presented by The Brown & Lutz Companies with a subsidiary of the Radnor Corporation.
